

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

OFFICE OF CONTROLLER OF COUNTY ACCOUNTS,
COMMONWEALTH BUILDING, No. 65 BOWDOIN STREET,
BOSTON, Feb. 1, 1895.

To the Honorable Senate and House of Representatives.

In compliance with chapter 438 of the Acts of 1887, as amended by chapter 275 of the Acts of 1888, I have the honor to submit the eighth annual report of this office, covering the year ending with the thirty-first day of December, 1894.

It is with a deep sense of personal loss and bereavement that I speak of the sudden death of my predecessor as controller, Edward P. Loring, who on October 30 last, after a day spent in his official work, with apparently a long life of continued usefulness before him, was without warning called from this life by the grim messenger, whose commands, however unwelcome or unexpected, all must obey. In his death the Commonwealth lost a faithful servant and I a true friend. From an intimate association with him in the work of this office from its inception in 1887, a period of over seven years, I have learned to appreciate the true nobility of his character. He was a man among men, a true friend, always considerate of the comfort and feelings of those who were associated with him in official work, slow to condemn, ready to approve, having a high sense of the dignity of his position, yet never otherwise than kind and genial in his treatment of those who were officially his inferiors. His two deputies learned to not only respect but to love him.

In the performance of his duties as controller he sought solely to do that which commended itself to his judgment as being right and just to all concerned, and he labored to advance the public interests committed to his care with a conscientious sense of duty as his guiding star.

The office was a new one, in work and scope; he found lack of system, uniformity and sense of responsibility among the many officials whose accounts and methods he was called upon to scrutinize. There was looseness of method, laxity in conforming with established law, carelessness in keeping accounts and vouchers; in fact, all the minor evils which experience has demonstrated will always prevail where there is no direct accountability and no continuing supervision of official acts.

How to overcome and correct all this, to bring about uniformity of methods, simplicity in keeping accounts, promptness and regularity in the performance of duties, and to correct abuses where they were found to exist, was the problem which the first incumbent of the office of controller was called upon to solve.

Controller Loring was equipped for this task not only with the legal knowledge of a lawyer, but also with the experience in court forms and procedures acquired through long service as special justice and clerk of a court. Of necessity there was more or less of opposition to be encountered. Many of the officers placed under his charge were men of advanced years, who had grown gray in the service. Their methods had, in their minds, answered all necessary purposes; their habits had become fixed; their system of work had almost become a part of themselves; and to inaugurate new rules and methods, and enforce the change, naturally caused in some cases a feeling of dissatisfaction in the minds of those who were wedded to their old ways.

The correction of abuses, the calling to account of those neglectful or wilful in their disregard of lawful provisions as to their official acts, the ferreting out and bringing to light and condemnation actual wrong-doing which had in a few cases, and I am pleased to say but a few, been carried on and successfully concealed for perhaps many years, caused an entirely different and stronger feeling of opposition to dominate the minds of those whose practices were thus interfered with.

Through all these trials of his knowledge, ability and courage, without swerving from the straight line of duty, without fear or favor, with malice toward none, and with only the one fixed purpose in view of faithfully and impartially performing the duties imposed upon him by law, Controller Loring earnestly and determinedly followed the course his conscience dictated. There were occasions in which, to my knowledge, arguments were brought to bear that his personal interests would be best subserved by his change of views or by his silence. Such arguments apparently only made him the more persistent in endeavoring to follow in the path of duty.

To show that his labors and faithful services were not without appreciation among those who were knowing to the facts throughout the Commonwealth, I quote, in part, from an editorial utterance in the "Springfield Republican :"—

A FAITHFUL SERVANT OF MASSACHUSETTS.

When a man of the record and standing of Col. E. P. Loring, Controller of County Accounts for the State of Massachusetts, is stricken with death upon the streets of Boston, it might be expected that the manner of his going out of life would call attention to his work and lead to adequate obituary mention. He was one of the most competent, thorough and intelligent officials in the whole list of State officers. The people throughout Massachusetts owe him especial gratitude for having made the office of Controller of County Accounts, which he had filled since its creation in 1887, the instrument for injecting method and system into the affairs of all our counties, exposing slipshod ways and insisting upon clear and business-like work.

Colonel Loring abundantly proved the need for the office which he held, and the mark of his faithful service in it is as broad as the State. He unified the work of the county and court officials. What in other hands might have become a mere sinecure, Controller Loring regarded as a trust, and employed to bring about much needed reforms. He was a student of the field in which he worked, and his annual reports have been rich in sensible suggestions, some of which have passed into law, and others might well have been acted upon by the Legislature. Now and then Colonel Loring earned the active enmity of the politicians who cluster about county offices, for he was a blunt man, and did not mince his words in dealing with careless or designing officials, nor stop short of prosecution of them when necessary; and such people were most active in seeking to obtain his official head. The "Republican" was at pains to inquire into the sources of the opposition to Controller Loring, and it was not difficult to trace it to his efficient and honest work. When the office of controller was created, Governor Ames appointed Colonel Loring to fill it; he was reappointed on the merits of his work by Governor Brackett in 1890; and in 1893, when sharp attacks were made upon Colonel Loring by men in both political parties, Governor Russell, after thorough inquiry, gave to Colonel Loring the handsome vindication of reappointment from a Democratic executive. This was one of the best acts of Governor Russell's administration.

I renew the following recommendations of my predecessor, made in the seventh annual report of this office: —

First. That there be a joint legislative committee on county affairs.

Second. That the law relating to payment of fees derived from naturalization to law library associations be revised.

Third. That in all criminal cases in the inferior courts and before trial justices, where appeals are taken, defendants shall be obliged to give a bond, as in civil cases and in bastardy, in place of simply giving a recognizance.

REGISTERS OF PROBATE AND INSOLVENCY.

The labors and responsibilities of this office have been largely increased by the enactments of chapters 183 and 248 of the Acts of 1894. The first mentioned placed under the controller's supervision the accounts of registers of probate and insolvency; and, this supervision and responsibility being governed by the provisions of chapter 438 of the Acts of 1887, and acts in amendment thereof, it was necessary that the controller should familiarize himself with the laws relating to this branch of the public service, examine into the requirements of this particular line of work, see what system of keeping accounts was in use, and, if necessary, prescribe, so far as possible, a uniform and simple system under which all the officers could advantageously carry on their work.

Doubtless during the year past Controller Loring made a study of this matter, and would have been prepared to make suggestions and perhaps recommendations at this time. With the very limited opportunities which I have had for examination of the subject or for consultation with the registers, I do not as yet consider myself qualified to express any opinions upon the general subject in question. I have, however, looked into the provisions and working of the law relating to insolvency, and have obtained information from a few of the registers whom I could most easily reach, to an extent to justify me in recommending a change in the law so far as the matter of fees to be paid in cases of insolvency and composition is concerned.

The statute law now requires that a deposit of forty dollars be made as security for the payment of certain fees, which fees may or may not eventually aggregate that amount. This law, like the laws applicable to fees in the supreme and superior courts, which were amended not long ago, originated in conditions which have ceased to exist; and it is now inconsistent with the policy of the State in regard to court fees in general, as indicated by the legislation of the past few years.

It was originally enacted at a time when the insolvency laws were administered by officials who were paid in large part by the fees which they received. Its object was to establish various fees for the various services rendered by these officials in the course of a case; and, for the purpose of securing the payment of these fees, it required a deposit of forty dollars to be made in advance in each case.

Judges and registers of courts of insolvency are now paid fixed salaries, and are not permitted to retain any fees to their own use. The fees are now collected for the Commonwealth. The law, however, remains the same; the deposit must be made; and the register is obliged to deduct from time to time from this deposit a fee for this and a fee for that, and finally to pay over the same to the treasurer of the Commonwealth. For example, a fee of three dollars is taxed for issuing the warrant, five dollars for each meeting held, three dollars for an order of distribution, a percentage on the deposit in composition cases and ten cents for each notice sent out in such cases. The balance remaining after satisfying these fees is returned to the depositor or paid to the assignee.

It is apparent that the operation of all this machinery involves much useless labor, requires the keeping of complicated accounts, and exacts from the debtor, who desires to avail himself of the benefit of the insolvency laws, unnecessary security. There would seem to be no valid reason why the principle of law which establishes one fixed and uniform fee in cases in other courts should not be extended to the courts of insolvency.

10 CONTROLLER OF COUNTY ACCOUNTS. [Feb.

REGARDING FEES IN INSOLVENCY.

I recommend that in each case brought in the courts of insolvency, under the insolvency and composition laws, one fixed fee, to the use of the Commonwealth, be established, to be paid in place of the several fees now chargeable by law for the various proceedings had in such cases.

Such a law would greatly simplify the accounts of the registers, benefit the debtor in a slight degree, work no injury to any interest, and, last but not least, enable me to do what I now fear is impossible to be accomplished under the workings of the present law, with the force of this office, as now constituted,—viz., comply with the provisions of section 3 of chapter 438 of the Acts of 1887, which requires that the controller shall at least once a year make an examination of the books, accounts and vouchers of the officers, ascertaining in detail the various items of receipts and expenditures and the actual amount of cash or money on hand.

CORRUPT PRACTICES IN ELECTIONS.

The second enactment referred to above, viz., chapter 248 of the Acts of 1894, entitled “An act relating to statements filed under the act to prevent corrupt practices in elections,” requires the controller to inspect all statements filed with the secretary of the Commonwealth under the provisions of chapter 417 of the Acts of 1893 and acts in amendment thereof; and “upon discovery that any such statement does not conform to the provisions of said act, in respect to sufficiency of detail or otherwise, or upon the complaint in writing of any five registered voters that any such statement does not conform to the law or to the truth, or that any person has failed to file a statement required by said act, the said controller shall notify such person in writing of his non-compliance, specifying the particulars thereof.”

An examination of the statements filed under this law discloses the fact that a large number are deficient in matters of minor importance, errors of omission having been made in a great many instances evidently through carelessness or ignorance. Such delinquencies are easily remedied by notifications to the parties involved, though with an expenditure of time and labor which this office has found difficulty in meeting, owing to the fact that the examination must be made within sixty days after the statements are filed, and this period, unfortunately, occurs at the time of the year in which the annual accounts of all officers under the supervision of the controller are being received, and must be examined, corrected and tabulated for presentation to the Legislature; and for this latter work there is, I think, shorter time allowed than for like work in any department of the State service; the annual returns being forwarded to this office between January 1 and 15, and the tabulation of the same being required to be completed before the first day of February following, for presentation to the Legislature on this latter date.

In addition to the minor errors of omission and commission above spoken of, I find quite a number of statements which apparently show either a misunderstanding of the intent of the law or a possible evasion of its requirements.

The law itself, in my judgment, is in many respects not lucid, and its true interpretation is often a matter of grave doubt; and for this reason my action under it, so far as calling to account apparent delinquents or infringers of its provisions, must be taken with great care, so that no injustice be done nor false position be taken.

As this is a subject in which all good citizens of the State are vitally interested, from the fact that it concerns the fundamental point in our system of free government, viz., the preservation of the purity of the ballot box, I present a few items taken from the statements, as illustrating the opportunity at least for double construction and uncertainty as to whether the true intent of the law has been complied with, or perhaps intentionally evaded.

EXAMPLES OF STATEMENTS FILED UNDER THE ACT TO PREVENT CORRUPT PRACTICES IN ELECTIONS.

Under "Expenditures or Disbursements" appear the following,
viz. : * —

The treasurer of a city committee states : —

John Doe, chairman executive committee, . . . . .	$85 81
Election day expenses, work at polls, . . . . .	375 00

A candidate states : —

Lunches of delegates and meetings of committees, . . . . .	$173 50
--	----------

The treasurer of a "nomination convention" states : —

Railroad travel, . . . . .	$131 25
Carriages, . . . . .	141 50
Canvassers, . . . . .	94 50
Hotel bills, . . . . .	89 00

and other similar items, the whole aggregating over $700, without giving either the dates when paid or the names of the parties to whom the payments were made.

A private individual, spending money furnished by a candidate, states : —

Hotel Blank, dinners day of senatorial convention, . . . . .	$36 00
--	---------

Another, like situated, states : —

Lawful campaign purposes, . . . . .	$10 00
-------------------------------------	---------

Another : —

Ballot distributors and general assistance, . . . . .	$105 50
---	----------

A town committee states : —

Voters living out of town, mileage, . . . . .	$186 50
---	----------

A committee working in the interest of a candidate state : —

Dinners for delegates, . . . . .	$136 50
John Doe, procuring credentials, . . . . .	39 00
John Doe, procuring credentials, travelling and hotel expense, . . . . .	116 00
John Doe, procuring credentials, . . . . .	10 00

A candidate, presumably, states : —

Seventeen men at polls, . . . . .	$85 00
-----------------------------------	---------

A campaign committee report receipts of $8,500 between March 15 and September 15, from a candidate for office, and state paid : —

---

* I use in these examples the legal fiction "John Doe," instead of the names actually appearing on the statements.

Canvassing, . . . . .	$2,530 00
Canvassing and expenses, . . . . .	222 00
Canvassing and travelling, . . . . .	774 00
Extra copies of newspapers, . . . . .	549 00

A congressional committee state : —

John Doe, expenditures and disbursements in city of X —, $1,226 00 and I find no statement from said John Doe as to how this sum was expended. The same committee state : —

Committee expenses and disbursements, . . . . .	$269 12
---	----------

The statement of a city committee shows : —

Services of ten persons, names given, in sums from $5 to $56, a total amount of . . . . .	$217 30
Incidentals, seven persons, sums from $5 to $172.65, . . . . .	279 95
Canvassing, fourteen persons, sums from $4 to $36, . . . . .	226 50
Election day expenses, seventeen persons, sums from $5 to $30, . . . . .	220 65

The statement of a State committee shows : —

Massachusetts bureau of naturalization, sums from $5 to $500, . . . . .	$1,230 00
---	------------

The statement of another State committee shows : —

Germicide service, . . . . .	$5 00
------------------------------	--------

The above examples, which I submit without comment, are sufficient for my purpose of supplying actual facts instead of general statements as to the manner in which the law has been complied with.

FIRST DEPUTY CONTROLLER.

The sudden death of my predecessor demonstrated the previously well-known fact that neither of his deputies had any lawful power to act in his stead in any administrative line. While, by the prompt action of the governor, there was but a slight interregnum in authority in this case, it served to show the importance and necessity of providing against the contingency of the absence or disability of the controller by giving one of his deputies legal authority to act in such case.

Monthly expense accounts of county commissioners are required to be audited and certified to the county treasurers for payment each month. As the law now is, in case of the sickness of the controller neither of the deputies would be authorized to act in this matter, and inconvenience and delay would be occasioned the officers in question.

14 CONTROLLER OF COUNTY ACCOUNTS. [Feb.'95.

Cases of defalcation or malfeasance of officials have occurred more than once, and such may come to light at a time when the controller may be for some good reason unable to act or to give instructions to his deputies. In such an event the prompt action of a duly authorized deputy might be very necessary to protect public interests; but if said officer was not clearly empowered by law to act, he would naturally proceed cautiously, and would hesitate in assuming any doubtful authority. The deputy might be free from censure, yet the delay might defeat the ends of justice.

In order that this office may be thoroughly equipped for all its duties, and that no lapse in authority may occur at an untoward moment, I recommend that an act in addition to chapter 306 of the Acts of 1890, entitled "An act relating to the Controller of County Accounts, and defining the powers of his deputies," be enacted, which shall provide that the controller shall designate one of his deputies as first deputy controller, who, when by reason of sickness or other cause the controller is disabled from performing his official duties, or when a vacancy exists in said office, shall execute the same until such disability is removed or such vacancy is duly filled by appointment; and that the salary of said first deputy be determined.

The tabulation of the annual returns, which follows on the succeeding pages, does not call for extended comment.

An addition of the receipts of all the officers now under the supervision of this department shows that the total amount received and accounted for is, in round figures, $6,314,351. Deducting from this the amount received by registers of probate and insolvency, which appears for the first time in the tabulation, there remains a total of $5,321,411. Comparing this latter amount with the figures for 1893, an increase is shown over that year of over $1,200,000, which is almost phenomenal in its proportions, when compared with the returns of all the previous years since the establishment of this office.

Respectfully,

CHARLES R. PRESCOTT,

Controller of County Accounts.
